1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the company is not making enough profit.

2. The next step is to analyze the data. This involves looking at the company's financial statements and identifying areas where costs are too high.

3. Once the data has been analyzed, the next step is to develop a plan. This plan should focus on reducing costs and increasing revenue.

4. The final step is to implement the plan. This involves making changes to the company's operations and monitoring the results.

5. Once the plan has been implemented, the next step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the company's performance to its goals and identifying areas for improvement.

6. The final step is to report the results. This involves presenting the findings to the company's management and making recommendations for future action.
