Wednesday Night at the Y

HE STOOD silently for a moment, observing his audience. Two ex-prizefighters, a girl to whom life had never given a chance, a nail-biting youth, a resigned middle-aged prostitute, two expressionless penitentiary candidates and a pair of fresh-cheeked teen-agers still in nursing school.

Father Egan leaned casually against the table, its surface bare except for the propped-up card on which was printed: GOD GRANT ME THE SERENITY TO ACCEPT THE THINGS I CANNOT CHANGE, COURAGE TO CHANGE THE THINGS I CAN, AND THE WISDOM TO KNOW THE DIFFERENCE.

The small room was depressing. It contained four rows of hard chairs divided by a center aisle, a blackboard and a piano with a lid secured by a heavy padlock, and the table. The walls were painted a muddy beige.

The Wednesday night meeting of Narcotics Anonymous was in session.

Father Egan began slowly.

"Whatever you may think of yourself," he said, "you're a

Dear Greg,

What would we ever do without N.A.!!!

Thank God for it!
