Dear Ginny,

I hope this finds you well and happy. I see from recent correspondence that you are actively working at your Lit comm service. Thank you. Several things I have seen and heard recently, however, disturb me. You as 83-84 Lit comm chair "inherit a rich tradition in dedicated trusted service. The sub-comm you serve knows how to work and pull together. They will reward your service to them with a style of support I'm sure you've not experienced before. If you communicate with them and live up to your responsibility to carry on in the considerate, group-conscience seeking servant of the committee manner your predecessors have established. In brief... please seek the wisdom, experience, and conscience of the Lit comm.-representative, experienced members-before formulating Lit comm policy or taking action in the name of Lit comm. Please study the minutes of the Literature Conferences in order to decide just what you are responsible for and what your REAL precedents have been. Please also study the attendance sheets of the World Literature Conferences in order to find out who those experienced representative lit comm members are. As one of those dedicated, experienced and representative Lit committee members I feel left out of a service project that has come to mean a great deal to my recovery - the sharing of our message in writing. At WSC 83 I requested copies of the new literature in progress - please send me copies of the step/tradition book, the Philly book, the new IP's etc. enclosed you will find my check for $5.00 to cover photocopy and postage costs- I will pay any additional costs to get copies of any and all new Lit in progress.

Ginny, I love you , and support you in your directly responsible Lit comm service efforts. The best help and support I can share is this- In our committee service efforts, as trusted servants , we are first responsible to our sub-comm, second to the larger service committee (through Fellowship representatives-not other trusted servants of that committee), and third to the Fellowship at large. In plain words- please respond to input from your committee rather than a WSC Admin that can't seem to live up to the simple responsibility of communication (Where is the Fellowship Report? ? ?) ... It was a monumental move by this Fellowship to elect a Californian to the Lit comm chair ... Please live up to that trust by serving and representing the whole Lit comm., by studying and walking in your heritage as Lit comm chair, by standing for Worldwide NA group conscience and Unity.

Stay in touch...

in loving service,

Jim
